RELIGION / CHRISTIAN MINISTRY / PASTORAL RESOURCES

Every church takes on the pulse of the one who leads it.

When a church is struggling, we usually treat the church. Attendance dips, so we change the service. Volunteers wear out, so we recruit harder. The symptoms ease for a season and then come right back, because the trouble started somewhere else.

Vital Signs starts with the leader. Mark Merrill traces how a pastor is formed and how that formation, healthy or not, shows up in the life of a congregation. Then he lays out a way back to health that begins in the leader's own soul and moves outward into the church.

For pastors who are tired of treating symptoms, and for the elders and boards who want to help them get well.

MARK MERRILL, DMin
is the founder of Vitals, a ministry platform built to keep a church's heartbeat steady from one Sunday to the next. He has served in pastoral ministry for [__ years] and lives in [city, state] with [family].

VITAL SIGNS

MERRILL

VITAL SIGNS

From the Making of the Leader to the Healing of the Church

"The health of the leader and the health of the church are the same diagnosis."

MARK MERRILL, DMin